or deactivated in boot manager with windows7 i have boot on-premise 2008 R2 server and on this server i have old windows7 os. The problem is, that when i open boot manager, i see my old os, i wanted to uninstall this os, but i can't because it is not listed in the boot manager. Is there any way to remove this old windows7 from the boot manager and how to do this? A: I would recommend using WinPE. You can create a new bootable USB/DVD or CD drive that will be the source of your new OS. Then boot into WinPE. You'll be presented with a select your boot device and then can load a new boot environment. An example of how to create a bootable USB/DVD: Step by Step: You will need a flash drive or other type of CD or DVD drive that is in the bootable media list. You can use the search feature to find your machine. Then you should find an option to boot into winpe. Then you'll have to choose your boot device (CD drive). Choose the option to create a WinPE drive. You need to remove the Windows 7 entry from the boot.ini. If you are unsure how to do this, then follow these instructions. On Wednesday, the US government alleged that the National Football League is doing a little bit of price fixing with its players. It's against the rules for the NFL to price fix, of course. But one player who makes a lot of money is complaining, and the NFL should do something to fix that. And don't worry, everything is on the up and up, you see. Jerry Jones, owner of the Dallas Cowboys, posted on his Facebook page, "We find ourselves on the eve of the 2014 season with a clear and present danger that the highest bidding team in the NFL will be at a competitive disadvantage to other clubs because of the salary structure which is designed to artificially depress player salaries." For example, he thinks the Patriots have a "stacked advantage" over the Cowboys because they can't spend as much money as other teams. (I have no idea what he's talking about. The Patriots' payroll is $36.2 million. 82157476af
